

WOMAN IS NAMED DIRECTOR OF BANK

Miss Susanna Walton, of Horsham, Gets Post in Willow Grove Trust Company

PRECEDENT OVERTHROWN

Optimism and confidence are among the chief characteristics of Miss Susanna Walton, who has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Willow Grove Trust Company. Announcement of her election was made today.

Miss Walton is the only woman bank director in any of the surrounding counties. Men of prominence in financial institutions say they do not know of any woman holding a similar post in any of the Philadelphia banks.

Miss Walton lives in a substantial home in Horsham, a few miles north of Willow Grove.

The selection of Miss Walton meets with popular approval in the community, as she is known as a practical business woman.

"I am gratified over my election, of course," said Miss Walton at her home today, "and will do all in my power to warrant the confidence which has been placed in me. It is especially gratifying in view of the fact that I did not ask any one to vote for me."

"I do not believe in soliciting support in such a case. I think that stockholders should have opportunity for mature thought and not be urged to support any special individual."

It was suggested that the average woman might feel a little overawed by taking such a responsibility.

"The work will not be especially strange to me," Miss Walton added. "I have been connected with real estate and financial matters for many years. I was in the real estate business with my father, John Walton, one of the organizers of the Norristown Trust Company, for fifteen years. During the last few years of his life I virtually conducted the business alone."

"My father was the first depositor of this company and had very constructive ideas. His plans were regarded as substantial and always along constructive lines."

Adding that she would urge the building of more homes in the Willow Grove section as a step toward general progress, Miss Walton replied: "Fortunately there is considerable development going on in this section now, and I shall do all that I can to keep it moving. Many homes are in process of construction, and many more are contemplated."

It was pointed out to Miss Walton that Philadelphia builders had blamed scarcity of operation to lack of support by the trust companies and other financial institutions.

"That may be true," she said, "but I am not well acquainted with the building situation in Philadelphia. As a step in the line of progress I would favor hearty co-operation of the trust company of which I am a director with responsible builders in the Willow Grove section."

Regarding the present business situation, Miss Walton said: "I think conditions will improve if those contemplating investments will stop hesitating and start their plans now. If we all advance our plans a little it could not help improving matters. Confidence is the big essential."

PLAN BIG CELEBRATION
FOR START ON BRIDGE

Military, Naval and Civic Demonstration to Mark Pier Razing

The actual start of the physical work on the Delaware River Bridge on January 6 will be a momentous occasion, and the Executive Committee of the Joint Bridge Commission yesterday talked over tentative plans for a fitting celebration.

According to their plans, military, naval and civic bodies all will have a share in the proceedings. The committee intends to ask all the commercial bodies in the city to take part, so that when the first crash of falling timbers tells that the city pier at the foot of Race street is being demolished to make way for the big foundations of the bridge towers the whole city will know that theory is past and that the bridge soon will become a reality.

INCENDIARISM SEEN
Probe On in Fires Which Destroyed Two Autos

Police are investigating fires which destroyed two automobiles, one last night and one early this morning. Incendiarism is suspected.

About 8:30 o'clock last night the fire box was pulled at Thirtieth street and Allegheny avenue. When the fire engines arrived they found a blazing automobile standing in the street. The machine was destroyed, and there was no one in sight. So far the police have not located the owner. The machine bore Pennsylvania license No. 400,385.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning fire engines answered a call at Penn and Dyer streets, where another automobile was afire with no one in sight but the policeman who had discovered it. No owner has been located for this machine, which bears Pennsylvania license No. 107,395.

Several good clues are in the hands of the police, including descriptions of several of the bandits and of the car they used. The bandits fired shots through the windows of the store, terrorizing customers and clerks, and then made their escape after grabbing the gems.

ON TRAIL OF GEM ROBBERS
Police Following Clues in $10,000 Theft, 52d and Chestnut Sts.

Every possible clue is being run out by the police today in their efforts to find the bandits who "shot up" the jewelry store of the A. J. Schroeder Company, at Fifty-second and Chestnut streets yesterday, robbing the place of $10,000 in diamonds.

Several good clues are in the hands of the police, including descriptions of several of the bandits and of the car they used. The bandits fired shots through the windows of the store, terrorizing customers and clerks, and then made their escape after grabbing the gems.
